T.E. Roberts Construction Inc. is a general engineering contractor based out of Tustin, California. The company specializes in underground, pipeline and utility projects throughout southern California. They are pictured above installing a 13,000-foot reclaimed water main in Rosemead, California for the Upper San Gabriel Valley Water District. They recently took delivery of a John Deere 710J backhoe, which has been vital to completing the project.

Tim Roberts, T.E. Roberts, Inc. comments: "One of the main reasons I purchased the 710J is because I needed the largest and strongest backhoe available to complete this project. It required that we break through cement treated base and the prior contractor on the first phase of this project had to use a breaker. The 710J enabled us to dig through the cement base without the use of a breaker. Another reason I went with Deere is because I know and trust the machines. I have a total six John Deere machines, including four backhoes and two loaders." Tim adds, "Trusting the machine is important but trusting the people is what seals the deal and creates a repeat customer. I know and trust Coastline Equipment and their people. When I buy a piece of equipment from Coastline, I get support from the entire company. I'll start with Tony Knight the sales representative from Coastline whom I have known for years. I enjoy working with Tony because he is honest, dependable and very knowledgeable about his products. He is a non-pressure salesman, a style that works well with me. I have also received great service and help from Coastline's parts department. Sergio Pastor the parts manager and Percy Taylor their parts clerk have bent over backwards to keep us up and running. Last but not least is Jessie Sanchez their customer service agent who helped walk our office staff through DOORS, the Diesel Off-road On-line Reporting System. His assistance was invaluable in getting our whole fleet registered. The entire Coastline team is very personable and they offer unprecedented service. When I walk through their doors, they know who I am and address me by name. When a company as large as Coastline can still offer this type of service; it is no wonder that they have my past, present and future business."
